

Micol Fascendini

Micol Fascendini is a medical doctor, with a MSc in Public Health in Developing Countries from the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine. She has been working in Public Health programs for over 15 years, mainly in Sub-Saharan Africa, focusing on Primary Health Care, Sexual and Reproductive Health, and Community Health. She has recently engaged into One Health, which she considers the ideal approach to achieve global health and sustainable development. She is one of the promoters of the HEAL Project and, since the very beginning, she has been working with the Consortium bringing the human health perspective in the multidisciplinary team. She is currently on her final year of the MSc on One Health at the University of Edinburgh, working on a dissertation on the operationalisation of OH among pastoral communities in the Horn of Africa.
